Farm

A farm is a place in the country. Some of the farms are small and some are very large. Most farms have a farm house where the farmer and his family live.

They have a barn for some of the animals. A large part of the farm is used for pastures for the farm animals to graze.

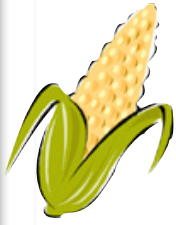

Many years ago most farms were small. They provided enough food for the farmer and his family. Today many farms are large.

They produce food for people all over the world. Farmers grow crops and raise animals to sell to markets. The food is sold from the markets to grocery stores.

Draw a picture of a farm.

Corn is grown on many farms. A large amount of the corn is grown for the farm animals to eat. Sweet corn is grown for sale in grocery stores.

A combine is used to harvest the corn when it is ready. The corn stalks are chopped into small pieces and are stored in the silo for food for the farm animals.

Most farms have large barns. Farmers milk the cows in the barn. They usually have small stalls for calves.

Farmers store hay in the hay mow. Children like to swing on ropes in the hay mow

Farmers use tractors on their farms. There are many kinds of tractors. Some are small and some are big. Some tractors have large enclosed areas for the driver. It might even have heat or air conditioning. They use their tractors to pull their plows, hay balers, and other machinery.
